Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Survey

July 2026

EnergyAustralia is continuing investigations to support planning and approvals for the proposed Marulan Gas-Fired Power Station and its associated gas pipeline.

In July 2026, we are undertaking further field work and associated excavation work to identify and understand cultural values within the project area and around the project area.

This work does not involve construction or night works. Where access to privately owned land is required, consent has or will be obtained from the appropriate landowner.

We appreciate your cooperation as we progress studies and land management activities for the proposed Marulan Gas-Fired Power Station.

What's happening	An Aboriginal Cultural Heritage field survey is one of many studies undertaken for the Marulan Gas-Fired Power Station and associated gas pipeline. This study is being undertaken in partnership with Registered Aboriginal Parties and Traditional Owners to identify cultural values, inform avoidance and mitigation measures, and ensure respectful and compliant assessment under NSW legislation.
When	3 – 24 July 2026 (weather permitting)
Where	Pre-determined project locations within the proposed power station. • Our property and surrounding property on Canyonleigh Road Where access to private property is required, consent has or will be obtained from the relevant landowner.
What you may notice	• Survey vehicles, trucks and equipment parked safely near access tracks • Small groups of people in high-visibility clothing walking and visually assessing various locations within and around the project footprint • Use of hand-held GPS devices, cameras and recording equipment • No construction works or night works will occur as part of this activity.
What you need to do	• Slowing down when passing survey teams • Watching for parked vehicles near the roadside • Being alert for people working in high visibility clothing.
